

Days Of Sweet Remembrance

Now the Ivy has gone red
Most other leaves have gone to bed
And longer nights are drawing in
And the Northern wind has said
Curl up your coats and cap your head
For the winter has set in

And the thoughts of what we had
Go round and round and leave me sad
With just one question on my mind
Are you thinking of our long ago embrace
From my half forgotten face
Or is my image more defined

And the Summer it is over
And you've left me for the sun
But my days of sweet remembrance have only just begun

From time to time I think a bit
It doesn't rhyme nor does it fit
You really got to me somehow
But how we made it at the time
Had no demands and that was fine
And so why should I want them now

For the Summer it is over
And you've left me for the sun
But my days of sweet remembrance
Have only just begun
Yes my days of sweet remembrance
Have only just begun
